THOSE WHO WOULD VOTE.

Being made a voter is a very simple matter but there are certain steps that have to be taken and it is necessary that they be taken within the prescribed time. It is necessary for those desiring to be made voters to get their applications to the registrars of voters before six o'clock tonight. Tomorrow will be too late. Filing applications does not obligate the applicants and it does not obligate them to be made voters but those entitled to be made voters should realize the fact that unless their application is in it will be impossible for them to be made a voter and participate in the election next month. For the accommodation of those who desired to file their applications the registrars and assistants were in session in the various districts on Monday and they will be today.

The making of voters will take place in the town hall between October 9 and 19, the dates thus far fixed being October 9, 11, 13, 15 and 19 with the possibility that there may be another day between the 14th and 19th will be added. In this connection it is well to remember that everyone should not wait until the last day. There will be an unusually large number to be made and it is important that full use of the extra days that have been fixed should be made. The act of qualifying is not lengthy and there should be no difficulty whatever in making all those who desire to be made voters use of the time on the designated days is made.

It is important that all those who are entitled to vote should conform with the necessary requirements in order to exercise the right of suffrage. There is a duty involved that is not to be overlooked.

Men and women over 21 who were born in this country, women who are the wives of naturalized citizens and who have been naturalized, are entitled to take the oath and be made voters if they can read English and have resided in the state one year and the town six months.

Don't fail, however, to get in your application today, and don't fail to be made a voter between October 9 and 19.

FIRE PREVENTION DAY.

In view of the fact that Governor Holcomb has designated today as fire prevention day for the state and Saturday has been fixed as the day to be observed throughout the nation this in Connecticut, might well be known as fire prevention week.

Fire prevention is a matter upon which there can be too much attention concentrated. The best way of preventing fires is by giving thorough instructions to the schools, wherein it is expected that special attention will be called to it today, but while it is important that the importance of avoiding and preventing fires cannot be too firmly implanted in the minds of the children it is perfectly evident that they are not the only ones who need to realize how large a part care plays, or should play, in stopping the great losses from fire.

While the great loss of life and the vast destruction of property, running way up into the millions, may not all be preventable there is unquestionably a large amount of it that would not occur each year if there was not the careless use of matches, if rubbish was not allowed to accumulate in improper places, if the proper attention was given to inflammable materials and if there was less heedlessness in connection with the handling of stoves, lamps, cigarettes and cigar butts, hot ashes and explosives.

Too great a number fail to realize just how big a part the individual can play in reducing the fire hazard. There is nothing to which the old saying that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure applies more so than in connection with fire. When it is realized what is invariably the cause of most fires it can be appreciated that it would have been remarkably easy to have prevented a large proportion of them. It is the importance of doing these very things which it is known will reduce the chances of a fire that it is desired to bring before each individual. It is for this purpose that fire prevention day is observed and certainly the countless lessons furnished by the fires that could have been avoided are sufficient to arouse the needed interest in this effort to prevent death and waste.

FIGHTING THE BOLSHEVIKI.

There have been times when it has been declared that the soviet government in Russia was in a precarious condition. It was even declared that it would not be possible for it to continue six months longer without assistance from the outside. Those six months seem to have passed and the government still continues. The bolsheviks have been fighting steadily on one front or another. There have been days when its outlook was dubious and others when everything was promising in the way of military success. Many of the opposing forces have been disposed of through annihilation, capture or peace, and while there still remains trouble that cannot be overlooked in the east the real big horns in the side of the soviet government at the present time are the Poles and General Wrangel's opposition.

Poland is pushing into bolshevik territory at the present time in a way which not only shows determination and fighting ability but it plainly indicates that there is no disposition to leave any loophole whereby the enemy can come back and catch them unprepared. Heading for transportation lines that will give them the protection sought the Poles bid fair to gain their objective, and in the meantime there appears to be no prospect that trouble will develop with Lithuania even though the efforts of the league of nations don't seem to have done what was expected.

In the meantime, however, not a little attention is being given to the efforts that are being made by General Wrangel in the south. As long as Poland continues to fight, the bolsheviks are not able to concentrate upon his front and by advances and new support he is strengthening himself against the day when greater opposition will develop. That the soviet government takes a different attitude toward General Wrangel than the Poles can be appreciated from the fact that he is a Russian and he is fighting on Russian soil for the overthrow of the soviet government but from what has been said so far even the soviet government cannot fail to recognize that he has been making a hard and progressive fight even though he hasn't been able to bring about a collapse of the government at Moscow.

CONFIDENCE ONLY IN REPUBLICANS.

Former Assistant Secretary Crowell of the war department, who only retired from that office during the past summer, has taken the position that many others have taken regardless of party when he declared himself in favor of the election of Harding and Coolidge.

Ex-Secretary Crowell was a supporter of President Wilson at the last two elections. He is still a warm admirer of him but he says: "Now that President Wilson is retiring from active political life it is wise for his supporters to stop and take stock of the situation."

He has been an earnest advocate of the league and regrets that we did not enter it but he tellingly declares: "I have every confidence in Senator Harding's judgment and believe that he will do the right thing when the proper time comes. I therefore favor the election of Harding and Coolidge and a republican congress. With an administration and a congress of the same political faith I am confident this problem will be settled right and efficient administration in my opinion is the great issue in this election. Senator Harding's election will, I believe, insure more efficiency than Governor Cox."

In the connection it is likewise interesting to note that this same former member of the present administration declares that "it seems evident that Governor Cox is making many promises regarding the league which he may not be able to fulfill." In other words he is doing a lot of talking and promising without convincing anyone, any more than he did with his wild yarns about the republican campaign funds.

As former Secretary Crowell points out the situation calls for the election of Harding and Coolidge and with them a republican congress. This means that Connecticut should elect its five candidates for the lower house and return to the senate Frank B. Brandegee whose services in Washington we cannot afford to lose.

GRASPING AT STRAWS.

Along with the desperate efforts that are being made to finance the campaign it is apparent that the democrats are making grandstand efforts to build up hopes on the claims of friction among the republicans. It is like a drowning man grasping at a straw, and so far as the reports so there is no little consolation in the fact that the democrats are grasping for his life would get from a straw.

The idea which the effort is hoped to convey is that Senator Borah has broken with the republicans and that he is urging Senator Johnson to do so, which would indicate in the opinion of the democrats that these leaders were going to desert and carry the progressives with them.

Senator Johnson quickly disclosed the absence of any such move of the kind and Senator Borah is now speaking in Connecticut and will continue to do so it seems probable throughout the campaign.

Senator Borah apparently has his own ideas as to where he can do the most effective work and where he should do it. His heart is bound up in the fight against the league of nations and it is upon that that he plans to devote his entire effort henceforth, unless the reports give a wrong impression.

The democrats like to regard his action as embarrassing to the republican campaign. Such is far from the case, but even if it were so it would not mean the flooding of republican votes to the democratic candidates any more than the fact that Attorney General Palmer and Postmaster General Burleson have announced that they will not speak in the campaign because of the statements made by Candidate Cox will give the republicans victory in the solid south. The former will help in the Pennsylvania state campaign but he will have nothing to say for Cox and Roosevelt. It will, however, be for other reasons than this that the republicans will get a rousing victory in November.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The cool mornings will of course mean a hurry call for the griddle cakes and syrup.

The man on the corner says: To the grocer every day is the open season for killing happiness.

New York speaks of being struck by a 74 mile gale. Many cities are figuring it in dollars and cents.

The big increase in windfall applies due to the storm ought to contribute materially to the older production.

Reducing the price of automobiles is going to mean the sale of more cars and the maintenance of industrial activity.

If Edison perfects a machine to talk with the dead he will be doing something which isn't always possible with the living.

When Babe Ruth takes to colliding with trucks he is likely to make a "home" one of these days that will end his career.

There were 202 killed by autos in New York state last month which shows that there are no safe conditions that are quite as bad as war.

Care should be taken to see that all applications from those desiring to be made voters are in the registrars' hands before six o'clock tonight.

Evidence grows that the more Cox talks the more the people think of Harding. After Denver heard Cox's betting at once turned to Harding.

Remember you are not a voter just because your application is in. You are still to be made but no one can be made unless their application is filed today.

THAT DREAM BUNGALOW

The day Ina Gray spent a hard-earned $5 bill on one such lesson was the turning point in her career. Not that she was conscious of it at the time; in fact, our great moments are those which occur when we least realize it.

Ina was a seafarer, and if she did not have a great ambition to sustain her she would certainly never have been able to stand the conditions and the hours of selling mailwares to difficult customers; but always when things went especially wrong Ina was upheld by the thought of a little bungalow she was going to have some day, and during a bill in selling she actually furnished it again, even to the tins in the pantry.

It had always been hard for Ina to save money; it seemed that every time she laid away a few cents she lost it. But little by little she had accumulated quite a large sum toward the bungalow of her dreams, and now here she had spent five whole dollars in an hour's time in the hands of a man who had sold her the bill. Whatever had happened she did not know. True, the lure of dancing music, played even by a street organ, had always thrilled her, but she had never before spent her $5 there. She was the added pleasure of a shining floor, good music and a most fascinating young instructor.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Bird S. Cole's Misrepresentation Concerning Anderson.

Mr. Editor: I see in The Courier of Sept. 24th Cole's charge, which I suppose appeared also in The Bulletin, that William H. Anderson has a "desire to turn the prohibition movement into an anti-Catholic and Jewish program," and "to again set on foot the old and tried Catholic trick of stirring up the Catholic charge for the first time just after the anti-Catholic charge has been launched, and heard his refutation of it at that time, I can give the incident in detail. In the summer of 1918, Mr. Anderson's actual statement, made originally within a week after the utterance of Cardinal Gibbons against the prohibition movement, and which was published in the Catholic press, was that Mr. Anderson's statement, almost verbatim, was that though there were many Catholics in the prohibition movement, several of the Catholic leaders had publicly declared against prohibition, followed by a challenge to disprove his statement. No mention whatever was made of the Jews or about the dance in connection with this matter. Mr. Anderson is abundantly able to take care of himself in open debate, or where he has a chance to defend himself. But the "pen to bigotry" came long before his charge, when Catholic ecclesiastical professed that prohibition applied to communion wine, while knowing that it was expressly exempted from such application only to intoxicating drinks "for beverage purposes." By the way, the Catholic hierarchy is already prohibited by their church from drinking the wine of the communion, and which is allowed only to the priests and their ecclesiastical superiors, giving the laity the bread only. I possess a "Full Catechism of the Catholic Church," published by Cardinal McCloskey, on page 259 of which this is set forth.

CARE OF CHILD MALNUTRITION CAUSES

The causes of malnutrition are in most cases not difficult to find. Among the most important are:

1. The child does not get sufficient food.
2. He does not get the right kind of food. He spoils his appetite for simple foods needed for growth, such as milk, cereals, vegetables, etc., by excessive indulgence in candy, sweets, pastry, and other indigestible food.
3. He eats irregularly, between meals, spoiling his digestion by cakes and trash.
4. He bolts his food, never taking time enough at meals to chew his food properly, but washes it down with water.
5. He drinks tea or coffee instead of milk and water.
6. He does not get enough sleep; at 10 or 11 years he does not get to bed until 10 o'clock or after, when he should be in bed at 8 o'clock, and sleep with windows wide open.
7. He suffers from habitual constipation.
8. He gets too much stimulation and emotional excitement—motion pictures and other evening entertainments.
9. He plays too hard—too many hours or in too active and intense a manner.
10. He is overworked in school or out; sometimes he has too many extra lessons or classes outside of school hours.
11. Malnutrition may also be caused or aggravated by such things as decayed teeth, enlarged or diseased tonsils or adenoids, and it may be the beginning of some serious disease.
12. In places where malaria or hookworm are present malnutrition is often the result of these infections.

At first the hell fire doctrine was held by only a few, but as time went on it became quite popular with those who were only part Christian and part heathen—those who were the philosopher's graft to their dying day and who were responsible for all the errors that have disgraced the church from that time to the present. Tertullian, who wrote about 200 to 220 A. D., is said to be the first of the early Christian fathers who openly taught the doctrine of an eternal hell of torture. If you combined the curative properties of every known "ready-made" cough remedy, you probably could not get as much real curative power as there is in this simple home-made cough syrup, which is easily prepared in a few minutes.

Get from any drugstore 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle, and add the bottle with syrup, using either plain granulated sugar syrup, clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, as desired. The result is a full pint of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for three times the money. Tastes pleasant and never spoils.

This Pinex and Syrup preparation gives right at the cause of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the phlegm, stops the nasty throat tickle and heals the sore, irritated membranes so gently and easily that it is really astonishing.

A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough and for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma, there is nothing better.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used by generations to break severe coughs.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for Pinex, and insist on getting it with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.
